A STRONG POSITION.

Ex-Speaker Beckley of the House of Representatives has come forward in a very manly fashion with regard to county offices and members of the legislature. He puts the matter very clearly when he says that he does not "think that legislators should be candidates for positions which they had helped to create." This is certainly the proper view to take, but it is not one which commends itself to a certain section of the House. There are legislators who want to obtain anything in sight, and the legislature being over, are hungering for yet other

This attitude of the ex-speaker is much to be commended, and it is refreshing to find among the herd of self-seekers one person who has an opinion above the mere grasping for place and position. Mr. Beckley puts forth yet another view, and that is fitness for office. The average politician of either party does not care a straw for fitness for office. He is ready to take anything with a salary attached, from President of the United States to pound-keeper. The main thing is salary, if that is all right ,mere fitness for office is but a secondary consideration.

It is unfortunate that the itch for political office, the cacoethes regendi one may call it, should have bitten so deep into the minds of some of our people. It was shortly after the closing of the legislature that the offer of a private position was made to one of the brighter young members of the House. The offer was a good one and would have led to advancement. But the offer was rejected. The member at the same time said: "I have done very well during this session and I guess I will stick to politics." This reason for sticking to politics has a sinister sound. Certainly the legislative salary could not be regarded as "doing well." How was it he "did well?" There certainly was only one way, and that can be easily guessed. If he "did well" in this manner in the legislature, he evidently expected to "do better" in a county office.

The proessional politician is an unfortunate product. He is a misery to himself, for he loses his own self-respect, and the respect of his friends. We shall have professional politicians, and plenty of them but it is refreshing to find one man of a party known for its grasping proclivities, who objects to run with the rush of grafters and eager office-seekers.

OUR FORESTS.

Our forests are now having that expert attention which they need W. L. Hall, who has come specially to make a study of our forest conditions is thoroughly acquainting himself with the situation. After he has visited the other islands he will be in a position to draw general deductions. At the present time his actual knowledge is confined to certain portions of the island of Oahu, whose problems are somewhat different from those of Hawaii and Maui, and probably more nearly approach those of Kauai.

Mr. Hall's investigations on this island put the fault for the thinning out of the forest at the door of the cattle raiser. There has always been a bone of contention between those interested in cattle as to this point Often and often have the cattle men scouted he idea of cattle having done any damage to the forests. This has specially advanced by the ranch men of Frawan. It has not been so much advanced by those upon the other islands.

In Oanu we have always an object lesson before us. When Nuuanu valley was a cattle run belonging to the Hillebrand estate it was eaten The tragedy of last night occurred also off nearly as bare as the palm of one's hand. The trees were dying and on King street but near the bridge. Of the jungles of hau were steadily decreasing in size and density. As soon course there will be a thorough invesas the government purchased the rights of the estate, and took on the tigation, and equally of course no one and become much tincker. A tew years will make a vast change in the cattle, the forest has begun to pick up, and the hau jungles have spread ed that on the last occasion of a fatal appearance of the vailey, even it no artificial planting were employed With systematic planting there will be much faster progress. The effect of naving cattle on the land, and of taking them off the land is clearly up, or had been shamefully neglected. seen and cannot be controverted.

I'ms conserving of the forest in upper Nuuanu has also had a visible effect upon the water supply in the Nuuanu stream. In spite of the quantity of water which is run into the reservoirs, there is a constant now, not a very large one truly, but a constant flow coming down and flowing under the bridge. A new years ago there was no stream running, except in time of freshet, and shrubs and even trees grew in the bed of the stream.

But it is not only cattle that have destroyed the forests. The carelessness of man has assisted in the work. Forest fires have occurred in many districts of the island. The great forest fire in Hamakua of two years ago, was no isolated instance, though many of the more recent dwellers on the islands have such an idea. There have been extensive forest fires on this island. A large tract was burned some years ago upon the slopes above Waialae, there have been great forest hres in the vicinity of Linue and Kealia on Kauai, and the forces of nature have come in to re-enforce the carelessness of man, for large tracts of primeval forest have been set on fire by the lava flows from Mauna Loa.

We have attempted to reforest but on a very small scale. The recovering of the Tantalus slopes in part by an artificial forest has been a great success, as far as it goes. It was a pity that some of this, which had been planted at great expense should have been cut down to accom- powers. The powers pacified Crete modate the experiment station. It has never been clearly shown who was to blame in the matter, but it was a great blunder. Considerable reforesting was done on the Lihue estate on Kauai, and some has been done in a spasmodic sort of way elsewhere.

Mr. Hall in his summing up of the forest conditions of the island of Oahu, considers that the enclosing of the forest areas by means of fencing, and then having foresters to preside over various sections, will in the course of five years bring about a marvellous change. One of the statement made by one of the Colommain objects of forest conservancy and reboisement, is the preserving bian revolutionists, now in the United will soon reach London and will take of the surface water supply. But there are other uses to which forests States for safety, that any treaty encan be put. Well cared for forests are a fruitful source of income to tered into with the present government nussion. The discussion will involve many states. The public forests of Germany render a substantial revenue to the crown. The private forest lands yield a liberal income to the present revolutionists had their old decuments, and some curious maps,

Much has been written and talked about forests, but it has been in a the United States would not occupy a very amateur way. We are now in the position of receiving practical very dignified position if after being advice from an expert in forestry, and a gentleman who is most enthu-practically snubbed by the Colombian siastic in his chosen profession. If we follow the advice closely we will senate, a much modified treaty were ing for war, while the government is gain valuable experience, and may succeed beyond present hopes. The proposed and considered, with Colomfact that we have 100,000 acres of forest land available is something bia as suzerain of the Canal. No, our new to most of our citizens. It will be remember accident it was found that a large number of wires were carelessly put of telephone and electric light wires, and a similar condition will doubtless be found. There must be something wrong with the stringing of wires, if they break as soon as we have a shower of rain. The legislature in its infinte wisdom abolished the office of electrical inspector.

As the Turkish government has given assurances dozens of times that if can cope with the situation in Macedonia, and never has been able to do so, it is not likely that the last assurance will b∈ carried out. The Macedonians don't want reforms from Turkey, and won't accept them, unless they are coerced by main force. The wisest thing for the Turk to do is to hand the pacification of the province over to the by bombarding many of the Christian towns and villages, and hanging some of the prominent Christian citizens.

Is not an old paint in the sense that it has been in the market for many years, but the pigments used in its manufacture are believed to be old, because they are supposed to represent the re-discovery of the secret of permanent color, thought to have been lost with Michael Angelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Fra Angelico, Corregio, Murillo, Titian, Guido, Raphael and other Old Masters.

CARRARA has been in the market long enough, however to establish the fact that it gives a BETTER FINISH, lasts LONGER, under the most severe tests, covers more surface, and COSTS LESS than the
